The Salon Art and Design fair held at New York City's Park Avenue Armory merges art and design, providing an inspiring representation how some individuals live.

Galleries from around the world participate in The Salon show and demonstrate their own curating talent by mixing historical design styles with today's exclusive articles. The fair is not an ordinary array of showrooms or one banal space occupied with mass-produced designs. Each gallery truly exhibited art and furniture in an eclectic and fashioned method.

Our design editor Meg Busacca highlights this year's leading galleries; each individually exemplifying an aesthetic approach that felt fresh and exciting!

5. Friedman Benda

The New York-based gallery, Friedman Benda, curates postwar works of artists and designers from Europe, the United States, South America and Asia. The Salon exhibition, "Artisanal," specifically focused on designs from Brazilian influencers, Humberto and Fernando Campana. The installation featured an eclectic living room occupied by furniture of mixed materials that showcased the designer's exquisite focus on craftsmanship.
