Friedman Benda in New York is hosting an exhibition titled "Static" that will be on view through February 11, 2017.

Curated by Glenn Adamson, Senior Scholar, Yale Center for British Art, the exhibition brings together works that span from the interest in chance operations and found object design from the 1980s to the recent trend of works with glitches, implosion, and the born-digital 'new aesthetic.' Considering the era of breakdown in design history during the 1980s and its aftermath, the exhibition showcases objects that illustrate the way designers responded to the conception of style as a 'broken signal.' The show features works by designers including Gunnar Anderson, Ron Arad, Andrea Branzi, Michele Oka Doner, April Greiman, Shiro Kuramata, Danny Lane, Wolfgang Laubsheimer, Howard Meister, Alessandro Mendini, Forrest Myers, Occhiomagico, Nathalie du Pasquier, Gaetano Pesce, Ettore Sottsass, and Tadanori Yokoo, presented alongside the visual effects and sound by Tim Pickerill.
